

The Challenges of Communication in Musical Networking of the Habsburg Monarchy: The Centres of the Society and the (Semi)Periphery

Ivana Horbec, Branko Ostajmer
Croatian Institute of History

Croatian lands in the 18th century

Tapestry in Trakošćan
(18th century)

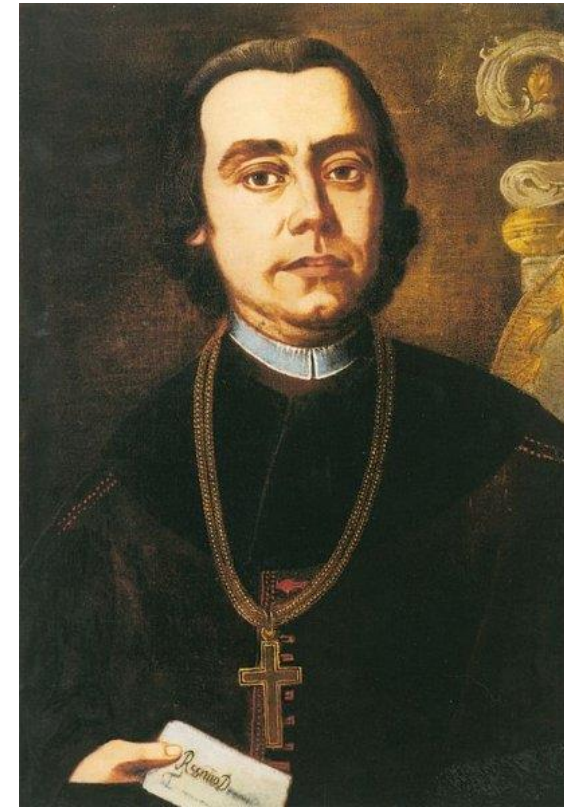

“This winter [1754] indulgence at parties and, so to speak, the triumph of debauchery manifested itself in Zagreb. [...]”

“Nobility and bourgeoisie felt a disgust towards this novelty”.

“There was a great debauchery, and all the countesses, young noblewomen, who were pleased with the dissoluteness, were invited, as well as the officers, ”

“In this way, things that the citizens previously rejected according to the tradition of their ancestors, were now began to be nurtured and worshiped, and citizens began to live lavishly; shame and shyness were considered a flaw”.

Baltazar Adam Krčelić (1715-1778), theologian, historian

Quotation: Annae 1748-1767

Family Hillebrand von Prandau, manor in Valpovo

Thank you for your attention!

