Glažbena knjižica za Julijanu Erdödy-Drašković (1779)

U doba svoje udaje za Ladislava III Erdödyja (1746-1786), najvažnijeg mecene umjetnosti, a posebno glazbe u Banskoj Hrvatskoj u drugoj polovici 18. stoljeća, grofica Julijana Drašković (1747-1782) dobila je oveći udžbenik (164 stranice) za sviranje klavira i pjevanje, tipičnu razbibrigu obrazovane plemkinje. Godine 1779, kad je Julijana imala 33 godine, nastao je Schlagbüchlein – rukopisna zbirka sonata, divertimenta i popijevaka, među kojima su se našle i neke potpuno nove skladbe Josepha Haydna (1732-1809), prije nego li su bile tiskane i tako stekle širu popularnost. U Knjižici su zabilježena i djela Jana Křtitela Vaňhala (1739-1813), koji je upravo tijekom 1770-ih kao dvorski glazbenik Ladislava Erdödyja povremeno boravio u Varaždinu i Novome Marofu, te Ignaza Pleyela (1757-1831), Vaňhalovog i Haydnovog učenika, vjerojatnog Erdödyjevog dvorskog skladatelja. Djela iz Knjižice mogla su se izvoditi na čembalu, klavikordu i klaviru, a sve te instrumente obitelj Drašković je i posjedovala.

Knjižica se danas čuva u Hrvatskom državnom arhivu u Zagrebu unutar Osobnog fonda Franje Kuhača. Ovaj koncert donosi izbor skladbi iz Knjižice u kojima se podjednako ogleda njihova instruktivna, kao i izvodilačka vrijednost.

Uz naslov Pleyelova Divertimenta in F, zabilježenog na str. 78-87, nalazi se natpis Sig: Ignaz Pleyel koji na kraju ima „čvor“, što bi moglo značiti mp, odnosno manum proprium (vlastoručni potpis). Ovaj detalj mogao bi upućivati na to da je tzv. pisar A, koji je zapisao djelo u Knjižicu i unio u nju najveći broj skladbi, bio upravo Ignaz Pleyel. Ova kratka trostavačna skladba nije registrirana u tematskom katalogu Pleyelovih djela, a postoji mogućnost da je ovo i jedini njezin primjerak.

From the Schlagbüchlein for Julijana Erdödy-Drašković (1779)

At the time she married Ladislav III Erdödy (1746-1786), the most important patron of the arts in the second half of the 18th century, and particularly of music in Croatia, Countess Julijana Drašković (1747-1782) received as a present a fairly large booklet of written music (164 pages) for piano and voice – reflecting a typical pastime for educated noblewomen at the time. The Schlagbüchlein – a manuscript collection of sonatas, divertimentos and solo poems – was written in 1779, when Julijana was 33 years old. Among other works, this Booklet contains several completely new compositions by Joseph Haydn (1732-1809), appearing here before they were officially published and became widely popular. The Booklet also includes works by Jan Křtitel Vaňhal (1739-1813), who in the 1770s, as a court musician in the employ of Ladislav Erdödy, occasionally stayed in Varaždin and Novi Marof, and Ignaz Pleyel (1757-1831), Vaňhal's and Haydn's student, who was probably maestro di cappella for the Erdödy family. The works from the Booklet were written for cembalo, clavichord and piano, all instruments which the Drašković family had in their possession.

The Booklet is kept today at the Croatian State Archives in Zagreb as a part of Franjo Kuhač's personal holdings. This concert offers a selection of compositions from this Booklet, in which their instructive and performing values are reflected to an almost equal extent.

Accompanying the title of Pleyel's Divertimento in F (pp 78-87 in the Booklet) is the sign Sig: Ignaz Pleyel, with a knot in the end, possibly meaning mp, i.e. manum proprium. This detail suggests the possibility that scribe A, who entered this work into the Booklet, as well as the majority of other compositions, was Ignaz Pleyel himself. This brief three-movement composition is not recorded in the thematic catalogue of Pleyel's works. It is possible that this is its only copy.

Isti pisar koji je zapisao Divertimento in F zabilježio je i Adagio in F, samostalni stavak nepoznatog skladatelja na kraju knjižice (str. 160-163). Po formi ovaj je stavak sličan sonatini, premda uz određena odstupanja. Obje teme u ekspoziciji i reprizi stalno su u temeljnom tonalitetu. Raznovrsnost unose mala variranja motiva i naznake tematskog razvoja.

U Breitkopfovom tematskom katalogu iz 1771. Vaňhalova Sonata u G-duru navedena je kao peta od šest objavljenih sonata za čembalo, no njezina tiskana inačica dosada nije pronađena. U glazbenoj knjižici nalazi se na str. 88-89, uz još tri sonate istoga. U Weinmannovom tematskom katalogu ova sonata nosi oznaku XIII: 29. Ni jedan od triju stavaka nema dinamičkih oznaka. Treći stavak je menuet, česti oblik zastupljen u knjižici, osobito među Haydnovim djelima. Ova je sonata sačuvana u još jednoj rukopisnoj inačici u bečkom Društvu prijatelja glazbe, a pridodan joj je i Adagio koji ćemo čuti na današnjem koncertu. Može se pretpostaviti da je skladan kao alternacija nekog od postojećih stavaka ove sonate ili kao zasebni stavak, kako je ovdje naveden.

Il Maestro e lo Scholare, varijacije za klavir četveroručno Josepha Haydna (1732-1809), u tematskom katalogu njegovih djela nose oznaku Hob. XVIIa: 1. U knjižici obuhvaćaju str. 20-47. Budući da je djelo prvi puta objavljeno 1780. kod Thomasa Skillerna u Londonu, može se pretpostaviti da je u knjižici preuzeto neposredno iz rukopisa ili prijepisa autografa. Jednostavna tema započinje s donjom dionicom (Maestro=učitelj), a nakon dva takta imitira je gornja dionica (Scholare=učenik). Slijedi deset varijacija, od kojih se za tri (VII, IX i X) postavlja pitanje autorstva budući da ih je u tiskanim izdanjima sedam. Te varijacije možda potječu iz predloška Haydnovih ranijih skica koje je sâm autor izbacio kod konačnog izbora za tisak. Nije isključena niti mogućnost da se netko drugi pozabavio dodavanjem varijacija, možda čak i pisar A – sam Ignaz Pleyel.

The same scribe who entered Divertimento in F into the Booklet also entered Adagio in F, a separate movement by an unknown composer, at the end of the Booklet (pp 160-163). This movement resembles a sonatina, though with some deviations. Both themes in the exposition and the recapitulation remain in the main key. Some small variations of the motives and indications of thematic development contribute to the movement's diversity.

In Breitkopf's thematic catalogue of 1771, Vaňhal's Sonata in G Major is listed as the fifth in a series of six sonatas published for cembalo (pp 88-89), although the printed version has not yet been registered. The Booklet contains three further sonatas by the same author. In Weinmann's thematic catalogue, this Sonata is marked XIII: 29. None of its movements contain any dynamics markings. The third movement is a Menuet, a type of movement often appearing in the Booklet, especially among Haydn's works. This sonata is preserved only in one other copy (with some distinctions), which is owned by the Gesellschaft der Musikfreunde in Vienna. That version includes an added Adagio, which will be performed at this concert. It can be presumed that it was composed either as an alternative version for some of the existing movements of this Sonata or as a separate movement, as it will be treated in this programme.

Il Maestro e lo Scholare, variations for piano four hands by Joseph Haydn (1732-1809), is marked Hob. XVIIa: 1 in the thematic catalogue of his works (pp 20-47 of the Booklet). Since Thomas Skillern first published this work in London in 1780, it is possible that it was copied into the Booklet directly from the autograph or its copy. The simple theme begins in the lower part (Maestro=teacher), and two bars later, it is imitated in the upper part (Scholare=student). Ten variations follow; for three of them (VII, IX and X), the authorship is questionable, since only seven appear in the published editions. It is possible that these variations originate from Haydn's earlier sketches, and that the author himself excluded them from the final selection for the printed version. A further option is that somebody else added the three variations, possibly even scribe A – Ignaz Pleyel himself.
